Customer Reviews

Bates, a travel writer and resident of Atlanta, here offers day trips for readers of vastly different tastes, in history (Civil War or Cherokee), flora and fauna, landscapes, art, architecture, or literature. He includes information on everything from Andersonville to Brer Rabbit to the Georgia Bulldogs football team. Bates divides the area surrounding Atlanta into quadrants and offers general maps of each (he recommends that readers come prepared with a good map of their own). Each trip includes travel time, routes and directions, opening and closing times, admission prices, and telephone numbers. Bates attempts to relate the atmosphere as well as pertinent historical information for each place discussed. He also includes a chapter of recommended sights within the city of Atlanta and an index of attractions and events. Recommended for public libraries. ?Julia Stump, Voorheesville P.L., Copyright 1996 Reed Business Information, Inc.
