Customer Reviews

The photographs are fantastic. This calendar is 12 months of captivating photographic art and nature that truly draws the viewer into the spirit of the place. This is the third year I've bought The Spirit of Place calendar. John Gavrilis is so good at capturing the light and color in his pictures. His photography has a mood and feel that puts the viewer right there in the natural setting. I like the size of the pictures, the calendar section is substantial and its printed on good quality paper. I save all my old calendars so I can reuse my favorite photographs for wall art because they are just too beautiful to throw out at the end of the year!

There are lots of nature calendars so another one usually rates a response like "oh, another nature calendar..." But this one is a bit different. Of course responses to photography are different from person to person but the photography here is of a higher order than most, and that's saying a lot in a field crowded with expert photographers. The detail of the cover Grand Canyon photo is as stunning as it looks here online with incredible detail and true colors. Most of the photos are from the American West but New York's Hudson River Valley and Gensee Gorge make it as well. The photographer, John Gavrilis has a great eye and the photos go well with the months they represent.

Great photos and enough room to write notes for every date

The pictures are pretty but the fact that there is a white border around/framing each picture as opposed to having the picture extend all the way to each side of the page actually reduces their visual appeal in my opinion and makes them seem smaller and less impactful. For the first year ever, I was even thinking about getting a different wall calendar as it is something I will be looking at or referring to for the rest of the year.

beautiful calendar still but a bit less variety of mood than previously. This year many images have strong red hues & a few white & gray but not as well-balanced as in other years.

Beautiful calendar with beautiful pictures. Second year we bought this one.

Colors photoshopped, a little brighter than they should be. Was shipped by . The cardboard was 1/4" smaller than calendar. When placed in my condo's mailbox, it was compressed and crumpled in the corner. It was not marked do not bend, and not insured. I will not buy another calendar fulfilled by .
