Reading this book by Dolores Cannon made me realize how appropriately the title "Convolutional Universe" fits in with its contents. It would be hard to find more "convolutional" life experiences than those that are featured in this book. Words seem totally inadequate when confronted by the gestalts reported in this book. If one is to find a common theme in this book, it is the uncovering of the life purpose of the individual through a meaningful contact with his/her Higher Self. Culling this information has been an ongoing theme in the earlier books in the series called "The Convolutional Universe" but in this book, the need to do so is more imperative than ever before. The information is very specific and would be hard, if not impossible to glean from the individual's present life experience alone. The reason is that conventional ecumenical values do not hold when confronting the effects of all the previous lifetimes. This is why Dolores Cannon's experiences with her clients are so unpredictable, because most of us readers define ourselves through well-intentioned societal values, and even the most diehard of atheists cannot conceive the vista of the exigencies of consciousness, where development is concerned. Dolores Cannon's books are so popular for this very reason, she presents her findings from the source as she finds it without questioning their validity through filters conjured up by the mind. So her clients under hypnosis could experience lifetimes as diverse as a column of stone, a part of an amorphous cloud, a salamander, a mermaid (yes, it seems as if they exist on this planet), a seeker seeking to experience being pure energy, a gladiator-turned-writer in a later lifetime, among others, some with vastly superior technologies than we possess today. After hypnosis, many of the clients experienced a total healing of their physical bodies, as essential information pertaining to the purpose of the present incarnation had been disclosed and the energies of the present lifetime could be channeled to a fast track evolution as many backdrop issues are cleared away. All this is exemplified in Dolores's quote that is highlighted in this book: "We have all the answers. We just need to allow ourselves the right questions." Another aspect to this book that is common to many of the experiences recorded in it, is that of the many changes that are coming to our planet and how many souls from other worlds and galaxies are answering a call from above (wherever that is) to help. It is clear from the many sessions recorded in this book that the Earth is changing and the frequency of human beings is being amplified considerably. Many of the souls that have volunteered to come here today are facing painful health issues and/or depression for their bodies/minds are not designed to deal with these unfamiliar energies, not least because all memories of the past have been erased at birth and one has to start anew. This is where the Higher Self of the individual comes in during the session, to clear up dormant issues and attune the individual's body to a more appropriately tuned degree of consciousness, commensurate with the changed scenario on our planet. Apart from the features mentioned above, it is fascinating to read about how we as a species interact with others not of our kind and the kind of adjustments required to sustain a dialogue with the latter. The role of karma and how it is possible to sidestep its negative aspects is taken up in some detail. We also learn that the sun is a massive star gate and not as hot as we believe it to be. We learn of souls with physical bodies letting other souls come into them in order to help ground more energy while they wait in the wings and observe. There is a detailed mention of the backdrop people, of the concomitant changes in the Universe, prompted by the changes leading to the New Earth. There is a chapter on how everybody has a motherboard which is the default overlay of tiny electric currents involving the DNA that keeps the person going and define what s/he is supposed to do in this lifetime. There is also a mention of Creator light beings that can create planets using holographic symbols. The ultimate goal for all is to realize that we can do everything we think about and succeed, thus reclaiming our innate divine power. This is a book to be read and reread to absorb its amazing import, one sitting is not enough. Warmly recommended.

Just read Book V and it is of the same quality as her others in the set. This time she devotes a bit more coverage to the Backdrop People in a separate chapter -- Book IV also dealt with the issue, and she repeats some of that info in Book V. What is amazing is that this information is now coming to the fore and it helps explain why some people are cold, lack compassion, and they lack empathy.. they have no soul. And that means they have, as Dolores says, no connection to their Higher Self... Does this explain psychopaths who have no conscience? I'd like to suggest that the reader take a look at Hegland's Virtual Earth Graduate (Ch. 5) and his Amplified Science of Mind (Appendix D) for a much more in depth examination of the issue... it is a real eye-opener. You may never look at the crowd at a baseball game the same way again! Hegland explains what they are, why they are here, and how to spot them -- and why (in Appendix D) one would want to know about them.

I almost gave it a four but that would only because for me, it ended too soon. I could just keep right on reading. All 5 books have been fascinating. I am glad Dolores Cannon's family will go forward with research and hopefully another book. This lady knew her stuff.

Am still reading this book so a lot to go. However, IF you've read her other Convoluted series (4 books), this is just like them. Interesting assessment of the human condition as seen through the eyes of Dolores Cannon and her many subjects. You won't be disappointed here. I'm just sorry she left us so early. I did, however, have the special gift of seeing her in my meditation on one occasion. I saw her on the New Earth where she was very busy getting things ready for the newcomers. That was fun! She was very busy, and we chatted only for a few seconds. It made my heart glad to interact with her that way.

I think all of Dolores's other books are way better, and the other Convoluted Universe books have more meat. I wouldn't recommend this book as a standalone. But, if you want to read all the Convoluted Universe books, then go ahead and get the entire collection, this book will tie in nicely to the whole series. If this is your first Convoluted Universe book, you will be completely lost.

I have read each of Dolores Cannon's Convoluted Universe books. This was ok. I enjoyed the others much better. There is not as much new information. I felt that this book was more a reflection of Dolores and what messages were related to her versus the general public. Since she passed away, this was ok, but there is a note in the book that there will still be more to come. Even though this was not my favorite, I still like the messages, and will buy the next book if/when it comes out.

This book was definitely not written by Dolores Cannon, but obviously was pieced together from unfinished pieces she was putting together. It felt as if something was missing, and came to an abrupt end which is why I did not give it 5 stars. From this piece meal Cornucopia though- it does present new information that forces the reader to consider different viewpoints.

Delores does a fantastic job of pulling the reader into each session as if you were there. The information is something that I have gleaned from other sources yet it is tied together here in a new way.
