It's a pretty poor textbook with no homework, as in a more traditional and effective textbook, resulting in the instructor being forced to create homework assignments too often. I've been teaching 20+ years - English 7, 8, 9, civics, economics, 7th and 9th grade world history, driver's ed., health, P.E., physical science, 7th grade science, 8th grade science, special education, 11th grade U.S. history, 8th grade U.S. History (and I might be forgetting something) - and I dislike this text more than any other I've used. So, like it or not, this is what our district uses, so here I am.

This workbook contains graphic organizers, questions, simple activities, and clip art, to support a junior high curriculum from the fall of Rome through the Enlightenment. Besides Europe, it includes Islam, China, Japan, West Africa, and the Americas. Although the pages obviously correspond to a specific textbook, if you make a photocopy of the page you need, you can crop or change the worksheet with white-out to fit your lesson. I find that jr. high students love to write in boxes, so it is a nice change from having them take notes on lined paper, and most of the work is already done. This book would be especially helpful for a new teacher, or someone changing subjects. A high quality, used workbook is definitely worth the money.

These textbooks and workbooks are so much more hands-on and fun than others.

Perfect to use with textbook.

There are many good student exercises that emphasize thinking outside the box. However, the directions for independent student use could be vastly improved. This "workbook" is a good beginning piece for teachers to use with their students as they infuse Common Core strategies into their history curriculum. This workbook when combined with the publisher's digital teacher materials is a GREAT tool not just a good tool for classroom teachers!
